

The Good News of Bath Christian Church (Disciples of Christ)

The Mission Statement of the Bath Christian Church is:

*“To serve the living God, to nurture our personal faith,
& to witness the good news of God’s love to others.”*

~Pastor Jim’s Thoughts for December~

Søren Aabye Kierkegaard was a Danish philosopher and theologian. Kierkegaard strongly criticized what he saw as the empty formalities of the Church of Denmark. We may know him indirectly through some of his quotes which we have heard and may not know to whom we should give credit. For example:

“Life can only be understood backwards; but it must be lived forwards.”

“The function of prayer is not to influence God, but rather to change the nature of the one who prays.”

“People demand freedom of speech as a compensation for the freedom of thought which they seldom use.”

What does Kierkegaard have to do with my thoughts for the last month of this year? As mentioned in the first paragraph, Kierkegaard often wrote about the stiff formality of worship within the established church. Kierkegaard saw the form catechisms and ceremonies associated with the celebration of Advent and the birth of Jesus and offered a parable to help each of us to understand what actually happened when Jesus was born. I offer this parable for your consideration.

Imagine there was a King who loved a humble maiden. She had no royal pedigree, no education, no standing in the royal court. She dressed in rags. She lived in a hovel; she lived the ragged life of a peasant. But for reasons no one could quite figure out, the King fell in love with this girl in the way the kings sometimes do. Why he should love her was beyond explaining, but love her he did, and he could not stop loving her. One day there awoke in the heart of the King an anxious thought: “How in the world is he going to reveal his love to this girl? How could he bridge the chasm that separated the two of them?” His advisers, of course, told him that all he had to do was command her to become his queen, and it would be done. For he was a man of immense power, every statesman feared his wrath, every foreign power trembled before him, and every courtier groveled in the dust at the King’s voice. This poor peasant girl would have no power to resist; she would have to become the queen! But power, even unlimited power, cannot command love. The King could force her body to be present in the palace, but he could not force love to be present in her heart. He might be able to gain her obedience this way but coerced submission is not what he wanted. He longed for intimacy of heart and oneness of spirit, and all the power in the world cannot unlock the human heart—it must be opened from within. So, he met with his advisers once again and they suggested he try to bridge the chasm by elevating her to his position. He could shower her with gifts, dress her in purple and silk, and have her crowned the queen. But if he brought her to his palace, if he radiated the sun of his magnificence over her, if she saw all the wealth, pomp, and power of his greatness, then she would be overwhelmed. How would he ever know if she loved him for himself, or for all that he had given her? And how could she know that he loved her, and would love her still if she had remained only a humble peasant? Would she be able to summon confidence enough never to remember what the king only wished to forget—that he was the king and she had been a humble maiden? Every alternative he came up with came to nothing. There was only one way. So, one day the king arose, took off his crown, relinquished his scepter, laid aside his royal robes, and he took upon himself the life of a peasant. He dressed in rags, scratched out a living in the dirt, groveled for food, and dwelt in hovel. He did not just take on the outward appearance of a servant, he became a servant—it was his actual life, his actual nature, his actual burden. He became as ragged as the one he loved so that she could be his forever. It was the only way. His raggedness became the very signature of his presence.

Most of us have a difficult time fully grasping the concept of God becoming human, leaving heaven, and suffering the indignity as revealed in scripture. Yet, Jesus explained His mission clearly in John the 6th chapter.

For I have come down from heaven, not to do My own will, but the will of Him who sent Me. This is the will of Him who sent Me, that of all that He has given Me I lose nothing, but raise it up on the last day. For this is the will of My Father, that everyone who beholds the Son and believes in Him will have eternal life, and I Myself will raise him up on the last day.” (John 6:38-40 NASB) The writer of Hebrews tells us that the ability of Jesus to understand and thus assist us in our salvation is tied to the fact that He became like us. Therefore, He had to be made like His brethren in all things, so that He might become a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people. For since He Himself was tempted in that which He has suffered, He is able to come to the aid of those who are tempted. (Hebrews 2:17 NASB) Paul tells us in Philippians: He existed in the form of God, did not regard equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied Himself, taking the form of a bond-servant, and being made in the likeness of men. Being found in appearance as a man, He humbled Himself by becoming obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross. (Philippians 2:6-8 NASB) For Kierkegaard, the king became a pauper to win the love of the maiden. For God, Jesus, the anointed, became a baby to win the love of His people. In both cases, we see that love is and was the motivation for ceding the loftiness of royalty to live in the common world to win the love of the object of their affection. The celebration of the birth of the Christ child is a celebration of love.

On a personal note, Ann and I wish each and every one of you a wonderful Christmas filled with love and good wishes. May your hearts always have room for the baby born of God who brings healing, salvation, and light into the world.

~Devotion~

You always hear the usual stories of pennies on the sidewalk being good luck, gifts from angels, etc. This is the first time I've heard this twist on the story. Gives you something to think about.

Several years ago a friend of mine and her husband were invited to spend the weekend at the husband's employer's home. My friend, Arlene, was nervous about the weekend. The boss was very wealthy, with a fine home on the waterway, and cars costing more than her house. The first day and evening went well, and Arlene was delighted to have this rare glimpse into how the very wealthy live. The husband's employer was quite generous as a host, and took them to the finest restaurants. Arlene knew she would never have the opportunity to indulge in this kind of extravagance again, so was enjoying herself immensely. As the three of them were about to enter an exclusive restaurant that evening, the boss was walking slightly ahead of Arlene and her husband. He stopped suddenly, looking down on the pavement for a long, silent moment.

Arlene wondered if she was supposed to pass him. There was nothing on the ground except a single darkened penny that someone had dropped, and a few cigarette butts. Still silent, the man reached down and picked up the penny. He held it up and smiled, then put it in his pocket as if he had found a great treasure. How absurd! What need did this man have for a single penny? Why would he even take the time to stop and pick it up?

Throughout dinner, the entire scene nagged at her. Finally she could stand it no longer. She casually mentioned that her daughter once had a coin collection, and asked if the penny he had found had been of some value. A smile crept across the man's face as he reached into his pocket for the penny and held it out for her to see. She had seen many pennies before! What was the point of this? "Look at it." He said. "Read what it says." "She read the words United States of America." No, not that; read further. "One cent? No, keep reading. "In God we Trust?" Yes! "And? And if I trust in God, the name of God is holy, even on a coin.

Whenever I find a coin, I see that inscription. It is written on every single United States coin, but we never seem to notice it! God drops a message right in front of me telling me to trust Him? Who am I to pass it by? When I see a coin I pray, I stop to see if my trust IS in God at that moment. I pick the coin up as a response to God; that I do trust in Him. For a short time, at least, I cherish it as if it were gold. I think it is God's way of starting a conversation with me. Lucky for me, God is patient and pennies are plentiful!

When I was out shopping today, I found a penny on the sidewalk. I stopped and picked it up and realized that I had been worrying and fretting in my mind about things I cannot change. I read the words, "In God We Trust," and had to laugh. Yes God, I get the message.

It seems that I have been finding an inordinate number of pennies in the last few months, but then, pennies are plentiful!! And, God is patient.....

~Announcements~

Bazaar 2019

November 16 was a big day for the Bath Christian Church! God sent us an overcast day, saving the rain until the Bazaar was nearly done, which made it a perfect day for shopping. A large and steady stream of customers supported every portion of the event beginning with delicious biscuits, then browsing the gym that was full to overflowing with treasures for everyone, moving back across Harding Street to experience the beautiful and scrumptious baked goods, interesting canned goods, crafts of all kinds, knives, and a raffle of tempting prizes, and finally topping off the day with soup, sandwiches and beverages at the Christian Cafe inside the Moe Shack.

Many old friends who have shopped the Bazaar for years returned once again, and many new people were on hand. Financially, the event was quite a success with record profits in the Yard Sale and the Raffle. Thankfully, because of the day's success, we will be able to continue our support of the many community and area programs that help others. Our outreach effort is a driving force behind the Bazaar project.

This year saw a new twist, particularly in the Yard Sale area. Every year we are astounded to see the Old BHS Gym fill with the donations from our church family as well as many other charitable people in our community. This year was even more unbelievable. There were so many items for sale, there was little room to walk around. Obviously, there was something for everyone. Even though there were shoppers for several hours, when closing time came, there were still tables full of valuable merchandise. So, the Yard Sale crew decided it was worth the effort to extend the Yard Sale to the following Saturday, November 23. The craft section of the bazaar decided to follow suit, as did Brenda Godley and her cheese biscuits. We repeated the Bazaar for another three hours on the 23rd, and many shoppers joined us once again. At the end of the day the Salvation Army truck arrived with three nice employees to load up the surplus items that remained. Not only did many customers benefit from the sale, but thanks to the Salvation Army, many other people will benefit as well.

The Bazaar has ended once again, for what we believe was at least the 50th anniversary of the first Bazaar. Months of Monday morning workshops at the Craft House, hours and hours of baking and preparing food, a week of loading and unloading supplies and sale items, days of setting up and arranging merchandise, and many lunchtimes of laughter and fellowship brought our church family even closer as we worked together for the purpose of helping others.

A tremendous "thank you" to all the people who joined the team and worked so hard and unselfishly to make the church project such a success. A truly tangible spirit of Christian love within a church family was evident throughout the entire process. Much love to the Bath Christian Church Family.

Claudia Alligood

"Tis the Season" for Our Cantata

Long ago, a Baby was born in Bethlehem that would change the world. He came as our Messiah, to redeem and deliver us. This year's new cantata celebrates the coming Messiah with a worshipful retelling of the Christmas story. Our church choir and members of the community are working diligently to prepare our annual Christmas cantata for you. On Sunday, December 8 at 5:00 p.m. and December 15 at 10:00 a.m., you are invited to come hear and worship through music as we present "Messiah, Heaven's Glory." This beautiful arrangement combines selections from Handel's Messiah, popular Christmas carols, and contemporary worship songs. We are excited to have two very special young girls from our youth group singing with us this year.

Refreshments will be served in the fellowship hall following the evening program on December 8. Spread the word to friends and family and join us in another season of preparing the way as we welcome here our Savior, Lord Jesus. Please contact Alice Wingate or Cynthia Stell if you can provide refreshments following the cantata.
